ONE RUSSIAN SHIP LOST 210 MEN IN BATTLE

Japanese Shells Made Battleship Carewvich, on Which Rear Admiral Witheoft Was Killed, Useless After Wednesday's Terrible Fight.

WHEREABOUTS OF OTHER SHIPS IS NOT YET KNOWN

Admiral Togo in Supplemental Report Says Five of the Enemy's Vessels Were Heavily Damaged, the Potemkin's Big Guns Being Disabled.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg to a news agency says that the machinery of the Russian battleship Carewvich was so knocked about during the fight that most of it is worthless. She lost 210 officers and men killed and had 60 wounded. Rear Admiral Witheoft was on the bridge of the Carewvich when a shell exploded there, blowing him to pieces.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 13.—Rear Admiral Witheoft, who was in command of the Russian naval force at Port Arthur, was killed during the engagement of Wednesday.

The Emperor has received a telegram from Togo signed by Capt. Matousevich, the rear-admiral's chief of staff, reporting that Witheoft met his death aboard the flagship Carewvich. Both his legs were blown off.

Capt. Wamoff of the Carewvich, Commander Samoff and several officers were wounded. Several officers besides the rear-admiral were killed. The battleship sustained severe damage. Her rudder was broken beyond hope of repair.

Capt. Matousevich did not report as to the whereabouts of the other vessels, but the dispatch adds that the protected cruiser Novik has left Tsing Chou.

TOKIO, Aug. 13.—Admiral Togo reports that five Russian battleships appeared to have been heavily damaged in the engagement of Aug. 10.

The Potemkin lost two masts and one of her heavy guns was disabled. The flagship Retvizin, which was hit several times at a distance of 300 yards, seems to have sustained the greatest injury. The damage inflicted on the Russian cruisers was comparatively slight.

The Bayan had not appeared since the engagement.

The damage sustained by the Japanese vessels has been temporarily repaired. Admiral Togo's earlier report was that the enemy's fleet near Port Arthur, trying to go south, was pursued by the Japanese fleet.

The Japanese vessels, with the exception of the Asokid, the Novik, the Carewvich and the cruiser Fushimi, appear to have returned to Port Arthur. Our damage was slight. Our fighting power has not been impaired.

JAPS CHASE RUSSIANS INTO NEUTRAL PORTS AND BLOCK ENTRANCE

SHANGHAI, Aug. 13.—Great excitement was caused here yesterday when four Russian warships anchored off the Saddle Islands. During the afternoon the Russian torpedo-boat destroyer Grozovoi steamed up the river, having vainly attempted to make Tientsin.

The Grozovoi is a dirty and unpainted and her crew are black with smoke and grime. They had hard steaming to escape the Japanese. Later the Russian protected cruiser Asokid, with Rear-Admiral Ukonosky, second in command to the late Rear Admiral Witheoft, on board, arrived at Wosung, with her fifth funnel gone close to the deck, all the funnels filled with shell holes, one gun on the port side dismounted and several large shell holes above the water line, and one lieutenant and eleven men killed and fifty men wounded. It is said that the Asokid intends to go into dock today and stop the leaks under water.

Pilot reports that three Russian cruisers are of the Saddle Islands, awaiting British colliers from Tientsin. A Japanese squadron, consisting of one ironclad, two large cruisers and four torpedo-boat destroyers, is watching outside to intercept the colliers.

The Japanese consul here is urging the local to disarm the Grozovoi and Asokid, but no decision has been announced. Meanwhile Japanese shipping remains inactive.

U. S. WARSHIP TO HAYTI.

Denver Ordered to Go on to Minister Powell's Request.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The navy department has directed Admiral Sigbee, commanding the Caribbean squadron, to send a warship to Guaymas and Jernie, Hayti, Minister Powell having reported disturbances at these points. The Denver, now at Porto Rico, has been ordered on the mission.

WEATHER TO CONTINUE FINE

Weather Forecaster Promises a Delightful Sunday of Clear Skies.

Sunday weather will be delightful, according to the forecast, and while there will be no need for overcoats, cooler weather will prevail and no raincoats will need be carried.

The forecast: "Fair and cooler tonight and Sunday."

The Dakota depression has continued eastward and is now about the upper lake regions. There have been scattered showers the past 24 hours about the upper Mississippi.

The crest of the eastern high temperature has extended to the North Atlantic and New England states, while a moderately high temperature prevails throughout the Southeast.

The high area has also extended to the Dakotas, followed by depression. There have been light showers in the Rocky Mountains and in the Gulf coast states. Fair weather is generally prevalent over the central states.

SICKNESS AND WANT IN HOME RYAN BEREAVED

HE LEFT BARELY ENOUGH INSURANCE FOR FUNERAL

Prominent Pine Street Citizens Whose Homes He Guarded So Faithfully, Testify Their Sorrow With Floral Wreaths at His Funeral.

While the police were ransacking the city in search of Burt or "Bud" Ryan, accused of the murder of Private Watchman John Mohr, a sad scene was being enacted at the humble home of the widow at 2305 North Prairie avenue, this afternoon.

There the final rites were said over the body of the victim of the tragic scene enacted last Wednesday night at 312 Pine street, and his friends and neighbors were assembled to lay away the mortal remains of John Mohr.

They were gathered in the little parlor, and in the next room the two elder children of the household—Henry, aged 12 years, and Emma, aged 10—were lying helpless with malaria.

Little Willie, aged 8, was the only one to bear his stricken mother company.

When the services were concluded a small procession was formed in silence, and the hearse led the way to St. Paul's cemetery, on the Olive street road, where the interment was made.

Only one thing served to lighten the scene and that was the fact that the little parlor was fairly banked with flowers, all sent by the property owners along Pine street by whom John Mohr had been employed as a private watchman.

Mohr was a humble citizen and his death leaves his family absolutely destitute. He had just enough insurance to cover the funeral expenses. He had been earning $60 a month as a private watchman for nine years, but family expenses ate that up as fast as it came in, and when he was suddenly stricken down, and instantly killed by a highwayman's bullet his family was left penniless.

He managed to shelter them in a neat, four-room cottage, which his wife tended with scrupulous care, but how she will be able to pay the rent from now on is a question for which she has yet found no answer.

Mohr was well liked by the men by whom he was employed. As is usual with private watchmen, he collected a certain sum each month from the owners of whose property he contracted to guard by night, and so came to know all of them personally.

A month ago he found a crowd of negroes fighting on his beat and started in to quiet them. After a severe struggle he succeeded in arresting three of them and had them locked up.

Some of his employers heard of this and thought his activity unwise.

"You were foolish to attempt such a thing, John," they said to him. "We employ you simply to watch our property. We don't expect you to stop fights and go around quelling rage. Somebody may get the best of you if you keep on tackling whole crowds that way. Let the police attend to those matters."

Had Mohr heeded this advice he might be alive today; yet it was only natural that, hearing shots and knowing that there was trouble in his territory he should rush across the street when called, especially as he believed it to be some friend of his, he spoke his name.

This was Detective James W. Lynch, who had just been assaulted and shot by Burt Ryan, and who called, "Come over here, John!" as soon as he heard the watchman rap on the sidewalk with his right stick as soon as the first shots were fired.

KILLED SAVING ANOTHER.

Mohr rushed to the rescue of Lynch, with whom he was acquainted, and just as he started through the side gate at 312 Pine street, which he knew how to open, the highwayman shot him through the heart and he fell dead.

"They've got me," he cried as he plunged forward, and these were the only words he ever uttered after being struck.

In one hand was a revolver and in the other his nightstick. He had not even time to remove his pipe from his mouth, and when he fell, face down, the stem was driven still further into his mouth.

That "Bud" Ryan, held by a coroner's jury for the murder of Mohr, has departed from St. Louis, never to return voluntarily, is now the fixed belief of the police authorities.

After nearly 48 hours of ceaseless search, day and night, by the police department.

CHECK PASSED BY WOMAN FORGED?

Warrant Charges Attache of a Pike Concession With Securing Money by Fraud.

A warrant was issued Saturday for the arrest of Mrs. Mary E. Langdon, who is said to be connected with a concession on the Pike, and whose address is given as 5211 Von Versen avenue, charging her with passing a forged check for $500 on C. D. Blake of the Slingo Iron company, 945-363 North Second street.

On the check, Mrs. Langdon is said to have passed, which is now in the possession of Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Dalton, appears the name of Herbert H. McCall, and beneath this name is written "administrator for the estate of Hattie McCall Travis." The check is made payable to Mary E. Langdon, and on it is written "for services in settling the estate in full."

On the back of the check are the names of Mary E. Langdon and Herbert H. McCall. The signature of McCall is alleged to be a forgery.

U. S. GENERALS MEET OLD FOES FILIPINO DAY

Secretary Taft, Gen. Chaffee, Merritt, Funston, Bates and Others Join in Festivities at Fair With Chiefs of Tribes Lately Hostile.

SAVAGES ACT AS HOSTS IN STRIKING DAY'S PROGRAM

Long Procession, in Which Jefferson Barracks Soldiers Led, Followed by Speeches, Native Sports in Tribal Villages and Drills by Scouts.

For the first time distinguished American generals and veterans of the Philippine war are meeting today with their former enemies, the savage Moros and Igorrotes, to celebrate Philippine Day at the World's Fair. It is the anniversary of the fall of Manila.

On the one side are William H. Taft, secretary of war and former civil governor of the Philippines; Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, chief of staff of the United States Army; Gen. Wesley Merritt, who received the surrender of Manila; Gen. Frederick Funston, Gen. Charles King, Gen. C. L. Humphrey, Gen. Bell, Gen. Bates, Gen. Wheaton, Gen. Smith, Gen. Summers and Gen. Metcalf; on the other Chief Antonio of the Igorrotes, and the Sultan of the Moros, Datto Faoude, Piliplan, Sungal, Lumbayangul, Songhalli, Ambull and Abulong.

In a program lasting all day, the savages are the hosts and have prepared a great fete to entertain the distinguished generals.

More than a thousand veterans of the Philippine wars have been at the World's Fair all the week attending their annual reunion.

The day opened with a military parade at 10:30 o'clock, starting from the Parade entrance of the Fair and breaking up at the Philippine reservation, where it was reviewed by the army officers on the Constabulary guard grounds.

Impressive Array.

Secretary Taft and Gen. Chaffee were escorted to the Parade entrance for the parade by squadrons of cavalry from Jefferson Barracks. The long column which passed through the grounds was arranged as follows:

Platoon of mounted police; marshal and aids; detachment of Jefferson Guards.

First division—Commander and staff, Col. Anderson commanding; band Philippine Scouts; Second United States Infantry Band; Company I, Sixth Infantry, United States Army; One Hundred and Nineteenth Coast Artillery, United States Army; battalion United States Marines; band, Eighth United States Cavalry; squadron, Fourth United States Cavalry; squadron, Tenth United States Cavalry; secretary of war, Gen. Chaffee, Gen. Merritt and other distinguished officials in carriages.

Second division—Commander and staff, Col. Zimmerman commanding; band, Philippine Constabulary; battalion, Philippine Constabulary; band, Fifth Ohio National Guard; Fifth Ohio Infantry; Spaulding Gray; band, Culver Naval School; battalion, Culver Naval School.

Third division—Society of Army of the Philippines; veterans Spanish war; carriages for guests.

The parade left parade entrance at 10:40, only 10 minutes behind the scheduled time. There were great crowds along the Plaza de Orleans and the Louisiana way and all the way to the Administration building.

Brigadier-General Miles, the grand marshal, rode at the head of the column, followed by a platoon of mounted police and a squad of Jefferson Guards.

The Philippine Scouts band and the scouts were resplendent in new uniforms of white helmet and trousers and blue coats.

With Secretary of War Taft rode Dr. W. P. Wilson, chairman of the Philippine exposition board. The secretary was escorted in keeping with the temperature and his proportions. On his head was a comfortable looking straw hat of the slouch pattern and the rest of his attire was negligible. Dr. Wilson wore a silk hat and frock coat.

The Fourth Cavalry, which constituted his escort, drew up in front of the Press building, near the parade entrance, and saluted the secretary as he passed. At the entrance to the Plaza of Orleans the carriage of the secretary was stopped while the military organizations of the first division swung into line ahead of him and for 10 minutes the secretary and his carriage were enveloped by a cloud of dust.

The Mexican government band had a place in the second division, and their brilliant uniforms attracted attention. The 100 Filipino students who are visiting the Fair brought up the rear, carrying a Philippine banner.

President Francis and other Exposition officials joined the parade at the Administration building.

The ceremonies at the Philippine reservation began at 11:30 o'clock, immediately at the conclusion of the parade. These and the parade were the only part of the day's program.

The Philippine reservation was open to the public.

TRACE ON STOMACH OF MRS. WATSON

Testimony of Physician That Morphine May Have Been the Cause of Death Causes Sensation in Inquest at New London, Mo.

DEATH FIRST SUPPOSED TO BE CAUSED BY DROWNING

Father of Woman Demanded Investigation in Course of Which Husband Was Fined $1500 for Contempt of Court in Refusing to Testify.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW LONDON, Mo., Aug. 12.—Dr. Lilly, who, with Drs. Hildreth and Briggs of St. Louis, has been making a chemical analysis of the stomach of Mrs. Jones Watson of New London, testified this morning that he had found traces of morphine in Mrs. Watson's stomach.

Dr. Lilly's testimony furnished the greatest sensation thus far in the progress of the inquest begun here several days ago for the purpose of investigating the death of Mrs. Watson.

Almost equaling the sensation caused by the testimony of Dr. Lilly was the statement of Mrs. Briggs and Hildreth that Mrs. Watson did not die from drowning or external injuries.

All three physicians have been here since the inquest began making an examination of Mrs. Watson's body and an analysis of the stomach.

It was announced Friday afternoon in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch that the result of the analysis would probably be postponed until next week. The announcement this morning caused surprise.

Mrs. Watson's death followed a buggy ride which she took with her husband, Dr. Jones Watson of New London, July 30.

They started out together early in the evening from their home and did not return. Friends, becoming alarmed, started a search for them.

They found the buggy empty by the side of a river near a small bridge near New London. Dr. Watson was lying on the bridge unconscious.

The body of Mrs. Watson was found in the river. Her face was partly under water. Next day Dr. Watson became conscious. He said that while driving the previous night there had been a collision with a horse-drawn wagon on the bridge.

The doctor said he was knocked unconscious by the blow from the horse as a result of which he fell into the river. He knew what happened to his wife, he said.

The funeral was held at New London, Mo., July 31. No inquest was held. Mrs. Watson's life was insured for $3000.

The day after the funeral, July 31, Dr. Watson left New London, Mo., for St. Louis. He was 40 years old, was the daughter of J. J. Suter, a prominent resident of Palmyra, New London is the county seat of Boone county.

Dr. Suter demanded that the Boone county authorities make an investigation of his daughter's death.

The result was the exhuming of Mrs. Watson's body and the impaling of a coroner's jury July 2. Drs. Briggs, Hildreth and Watson, together with physicians from New London, Hannibal and Palmyra, began an autopsy.

At the inquest Friday, Dr. Watson refused to testify, and was fined $15 for contempt of court.

Government Opens Negotiations for Ute Indian Historic Lands.

DENVER, Aug. 12.—Senator T. M. Patterson of Colorado has gone to Navajo Springs to meet the chiefs of the Ute Indians and try to make arrangements with them whereby they will convey to the United States government the tract known as the Mesa Verde lands and its ancient ruins.

These ruins are of inestimable value as prehistoric studies, and the present movement is the result of an amendment to the Indian appropriation bill which gives the President the right to negotiate for the purchase of the lands and looks to the preservation of the ruins.

There will be representatives of the various departments at this meeting, besides Mrs. Gilbert McGee, president of the Ute club, for the preservation of cliff dwellers' ruins; Agent Peterson of the Ute, and Senator Patterson of Colorado, who owns an area of 20 miles and one of the best preserved houses has 20 Indian rooms. They are on the border of the Colorado and New Mexico.

Court Attacks Witness' Veracity.
James E. Brennan, said to be a saloon-keeper near Ninth and Olive streets, will be given an opportunity to produce Ruth V. Bishop, aged 19 years, in Judge Ryan's court next Wednesday, following the postponement of his case by Judge Ryan as told in late editions of Friday's Post-Dispatch. Brennan is charged with aiding Mrs. Grace F. Bishop to leave the city with her daughter, Ruth, for whom a habeas corpus writ was secured last Saturday by the girl's father, Fred M. Bishop of Houston, Tex. In court Friday, Judge Ryan told Brennan that he was either lying or had had previous statements with which he denied knowing Mrs. Bishop's whereabouts, and that he knew Mrs. Bishop where Mrs. Bishop and her daughter were.

GIANT SEA TURTLES IN A DEADLY FIGHT FOR THREE DAYS

Wireless News to the Post-Dispatch From the World's Fair Relates Savage Conflict of Monsters of the Sea in the New Jersey Fish Exhibit.

VIA AMERICAN DE FOREST WIRELESS TELEGRAPH.
POST-DISPATCH WORLD'S FAIR BUREAU, Aug. 12.—Interference by the attendants was all that saved a 150-pound sea turtle from death in a desperate fight with three of his mates in the big tank of the New Jersey exhibit in the Forestry, Fish and Game building at the World's Fair Friday afternoon.

The attacking turtles weighed only 50 pounds each, but their persistent assaults on the head and flanks of the monster wore him out and he was eventually taken from the tank exhausted and covered with wounds. The battle, which began three days ago, was watched daily by large crowds.

It was fought in rounds, several assaults on the big fellow being made each day. For two days he held his own, but the assailants became so vicious Friday that he could not withstand them.

Like the Japanese about Kurapatkin, they again and again attacked on the front and both flanks simultaneously.

Backing off to the corners of the big tank, they rushed through the water toward him, gaining speed as they advanced.

Their mouths were their only weapons, and they went at the big fellow biting furiously.

They tore wounds in his head, neck and flanks.

Most of the time all the fighters were beneath the water, but occasionally they rose to the surface in the struggle, making the water fairly boil.

The monster was more than an equal for the turtle attacking from in front, and frequently turned to drive away the flanks. He succeeded in inflicting many wounds on the three, but the incessant assaults left him no resting spells, and this, with loss of blood, wore him out.

The attendants say they will not be able to put the big turtle in the tank again with his enemies, for his return would be the signal for a renewal of the battle.

exhibits and hears a lecture from the expert in charge.

The lecture yesterday was at the St. Louis section, where Prof. C. G. Rammann, assistant superintendent of public schools, explained the St. Louis "swallow" system, illustrating his address by means of the exhibit.

All the commissioners of education from foreign countries were present. Hereafter similar visits will be paid to each of the educational exhibits.

Whereas similar explanatory lectures will be delivered in this way the attaches of the building say they have an international educational congress, which is the first of its kind, and many improvements will be introduced in the school system of cities, states and nations represented at the conference.

SICKNESS IN HOME RYAN BEREAVED

In general and Chief Desmond's men and the special district officers in particular, no direct trace of the man's whereabouts has been found.

Fifty or more detectives and special officers have crossed the murderer's trail more than once, but never since he left his room at 2313 Olive street, telling his landlady, Mrs. M. Guilmano, that he was going away for good, has any direct trace of "Bud" Ryan been discovered.

That was only a few minutes after he had robbed George B. Duffy, a bartender, whom he knew and who knew him, of the very place where he was last seen.

He was standing in a front room, just off the hall, when a young man walked in from the street and was out of sight.

Happening to see Mrs. Shields, he at once stopped and said to her:

"Did I rent a room here today?"

"No, sir, you did not," replied Mrs. Shields. "The only man who must be mistaken in the house."

And with that he walked rapidly to the door and down to the street.

His statement that he had knocked at the door, she says, is false.

The description of this man tallies exactly with that of the man Ryan published in the Post-Dispatch, and his hair was light brown, his eyes were large and blue, his height was the same as in every way he was the counterpart of the man who is charged with the murder of Watchman Mohr.

THOUGHT TWO ZEALOUS
DETECTIVES TRAIN ROBBERS.
Detectives Dougherty and Henry, two of the men assigned to work on the Mohr case, had the novel experience of being mistaken for train robbers as they boarded an Iron Mountain train at Carondelet in a search for "Bud" Ryan, the man who was wanted by the police as a suspected murderer.

The detectives had been instructed to board all Iron Mountain trains and search for Ryan, who was believed to be on the train. They were to stop, but when they saw the train crew, they were mistaken for robbers.

—the sole arbiter in fact—of the spelling of his own name, and when it is established that Ryan wrote his name as BURT RYAN, it is only the part of common sense to accept that form.

Whether or not Burt Ryan is his baptismal name or one adopted by him for reasons known only to himself, is another matter.

Ryan acquired several nicknames during the brief time he lived in the neighborhood of Ewing avenue and Olive street.

Miss Adams knew him as "Burt," George Duffy, Ralph Oard and others knew him as "Bud."

He gave his name to a restaurant cashier as "Burt."

He told Saloonkeeper Wilcox once that his name was "Bud."

On account of his peculiar actions a number of people called him "Simpleton" or "Bimp," and these names were abbreviated and changed to "Simple" and "Sempie."

But in every instance it will be observed, he was known as RYAN—never as RHYNE.

WOMAN SURE SHE THWARTED
THEFT BY RYAN IN HER HOME.
Mrs. M. C. Shields of 231 West Pine boulevard is certain that Burt Ryan, charged with the Mohr murder two blocks west of here, was in her home at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

She was standing in a front room, just off the hall, when a young man walked in from the street and was out of sight.

Happening to see Mrs. Shields, he at once stopped and said to her:

"Did I rent a room here today?"

"No, sir, you did not," replied Mrs. Shields. "The only man who must be mistaken in the house."

CHILDREN SEND FLOWERS TO DEAD WATCHMAN'S GRAVE.
A touching tribute to the humble worth of John Mohr was paid by the children in the neighborhood where he had been employed as a private watchman for several years.

Clara Clucas, aged 12 years, of 308 Lindell boulevard, had known Mohr for five years and was deeply grieved when she learned of his tragic death.

She presented the children's sympathy to John Cunningham of 303 Lindell boulevard, who is about her own age, and who had known Mohr for five years.

They secured $5 in all, and with this sum they purchased a flower which was placed on the coffin of the man whose kind words had won him the love of many children.

INSISTED NAME WAS RYAN,
BUT KEPT HIS PAST SECRET.
Miss Ella Adams of 206 Pine street, who was one of the last persons to see Ryan, was closely questioned Saturday morning by Assistant Chief of Detectives John J. Keely.

"I had known Mr. Ryan about five weeks," she said, "and he never signed his name 'Burt Ryan.' He never knew him by any other name, and he never knew him by any other name, and he never knew him by any other name."

"He never told me his occupation nor where he lived, but I think he was a watchman."

"He always acted mysteriously—that is, like a person who is keeping something from me."

"I thought he was going to tell me, but he never did."

"I don't believe I ought to be going with you. I don't know anything about Ryan."

CZAREWITCH HAS TWENTY-TWO TITLES

Russia's Ruler Moved to Tears When Informed of Birth of His Son.

ORDER PROVIDED FOR HIM

Russian People Say Saint Seraphim Worked Miracle in Return for Honors From Emperor.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT OF CZAREWITCH'S BIRTH.
ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 12.—The official announcement of the birth of an heir to the throne was first made in the following proclamation, issued by Emperor Nicholas at the Peterhof palace:

"By the grace of God, we, Nicholas II, Emperor and Autocrat of all the Russias, Czar of Poland, Grand Duke of Finland, etc., announce to all our faithful subjects that our dear wife, Empress Alexandra Feodorovna, was safely delivered of our son, Alexis."

"This joyous event is vouchsafed us and your kingdom by God as a blessing."

Our prayers should be rendered to the most high for a continuance in growth and health of this, our first-born son, who is to be our heir and who is committed to our care by God for the perpetuation of our great office in the state.

"According to our manifesto issued July 25, 1893, we appointed our dear brother, Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovich, as heir apparent until a son should be born to us. From the present day this title devolves upon our son Alexis, with the calling and title of heir apparent and all rights thereto."

"Given at Peterhof, the 13th day of July in the year of our Lord, 1904, and the tenth year of our reign. Signed with our own hand, 'NICHOLAS.'"

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 12.—No happier, more grateful man exists today than the Emperor of Russia.

When the court acquaintances informed his absolutely indescribable. The Czar was moved to tears. Hastening to the Czarina's side he himself gave her a glass of water which she drank. Then, filled with superlative joy, he stood and gazed at her. It was a moment of intense emotion, broken by a tender smile from the Empress.

From her bedside the Czar passed into the adjoining chamber. There lay the child of immense distress, the little Czar with Alexis, in a blue silk cradle which had been waiting for his coming long. His mother, in an outburst of joy, wept, remained regarding the child for several minutes. Then he hurried from the room to announce the good news.

On receiving the congratulations of his courtiers, the Czar said: "I will be a happy father at the birth of my son and I will be a happy father at the birth of my son and I will be a happy father at the birth of my son."

He said: "I will be a happy father at the birth of my son and I will be a happy father at the birth of my son and I will be a happy father at the birth of my son."

THEY ARE COMING TO THE FAIR.

Post-Dispatch.
statue, Mr. Victory, upon the star-lit dome, the darkened Cascades, which he proudly calls his home, med a restful posture—standing on one's toes all day, and one's arms extended upward is most trying anyway. And he spoke in accents silvery, tho' he was a gilded youth, while I strained my ears to listen to his wonder words of truth:— "From my high and mighty station I can see them everywhere. They are coming!"
Yes, they're coming!
Yes, they're coming!
To the Fair!
There's McCaffery, who floated down the river on a log. He has safely reached St. Louis; he is such a daring dog. While across a thousand miles of plains the walking Harman boy. With a three-cent piece—concessionaires are going mad with joy. Here's a man running backward; here's one on his hands and knees. And the telegraph wires are full of men with balance poles of trees; You may think it's dope I'm using, but it isn't I declare, For they're coming!
Yes, they're coming!
Yes, they're coming!
To the Fair!
"What's this I see in Florida?" he gazed intently there.
"Why, bless my heart, I do believe he's coming to the Fair. He is moving very slowly and it's on a bet they say. For he's rolling a potato with a toothpick all the way. They are coming in their airships; they are tunneling the ground; In their diving suits they're coming; in their autos on the ground. And it's 'Meet me on the Pike, Ike,' the song that fills the air. For they're coming!
Yes, they're coming!
Yes, they're coming!
To the Fair!"
"There's a man who will not eat or DRINK until he sees the show; And a man who's basking round the world to get there for the snow. There's two children in their ox-cart and there's more that I could tell If it wasn't that at present I'm not feeling very well—"
Then quite suddenly the sun arose—his voice died to a moan, And my Victory stood upon his toes, immovable as stone. He could not answer if he would, and so I asked the stars, "Are there any Good, sane persons,
Coming Fairward
In the Cars?"

HAVE THE IGORROTES KILLED THE ART EXHIBIT?

Mr. Casey Makes Some Pertinent Remarks About People Who Want to See
"The Real Thing."

"D'ye know, McDonald, th' art exhibit ain't doin' much iv anythin' at this Fair," said Casey, whose duty it is to wind and water the floral clock.
"It has noticed it, but I dinna know whae," answered McDonald, whose Fair job is to dress like a Highlander and hang around in front of a Scotch distillery exhibit in the Agriculture building.
"D'ye know, McDonald, I b'lieve it's thae Irgorrotas thae's doin' it," said Casey, setting the floral clock by his Waterbury.
"Whae's that, Casey?" asked the man in the kilt and plaid.
"They're naked," said Casey. "It used to be thae' whin people want to an' exposishun th' first thing they looked for was somethin' naked. That's why there was such a hullabaloo about art. Whin th' Chicago Fair was awn there was an awful hue an' cry over th' art exhibit, an' about all ye could hear 'em saying was: 'Hev ye seen the ptyooers?' 'Naw,' says th' wan addressed. 'Tyeen go on an' see Vanus she's just taken her bath.' Thun one iv thim would say: 'Hev ye seen Apollo Belvedere in th' wae' wing?' 'Naw,' says th' wan addressed. 'Then see him, fer he's got a g-great schape.'"
"That's how it wint at Chicago. They was just crazy about ptyooers. They couldn't see enough iv 'em. They jus' leaned agin wan anither all day long lookin' at th' naked min an' wamin on th' walls."
"Thun there was the scolopturin'. Ye should hev seen 'em take to it, McDonald. They wint in very strong fr' it, esp'ly Greek scolopturin'. Th' Greeks niver cut anny clothes fr' their sgyns. They wint in a leaf here an' a vine there, but Greek art is 'purty much all unklivered."
"Wan day I saw a lady in fine clothes lookin' at a sgynoor of Adonis. Whin I come up she almost' showed me off my feet by observin' aloud: 'Ain't he got fine lalgs!'"
"I'll tell ye, McDonald, they wint in g-great fr' art at Chicago. But they ain't doin' it here. Ives in thim has thae fine structures filled with art treasures. Ives wint to Europe fr' 'em. He got 'em out iv treasure galleries that he had to git into with a jimmy. They're worth wan million dollars as they hang today, an' there's wan single sgynoor over there thae wou' embrod up in war if we lost it. It's the portrait iv Queen Ann iv China. She had it painted fr' this Fair. It took thirty chinks sixty days to b-bring it over and hang it. It weighs twinty-eivin pounds."
"But d'ye notice, McDonald, there's naw in th' art exhibit. Art's very short at this Fair, in fa'. McDonald, it's gone to helangone."

"Why? D'ye know why, McDonald?" I'll tell ye: It's because iv thim Irgorrotas. They're naked. Min, wimin an' chil'r'n, they're ain't a desert dressed wan among 'em."
"An' whae's more, they're good schapes. Wy go in th' art buidin' an' see Adonis in th' whin ye can go over'n th' Phil'pines an' see 'im in th' flesh? Why go lookin' fr' lalgs in th' department iv scolopturin whin ye can see all ye want iv 'em runnin' around in th' Phil'pines?"
"Why look fr' Venus bathin' on canvas whin ye can fin' her in swimmin' over on th' side hill?"
"Naw, McDonald, there ain't anything doin' fr' art at this Fair. Art is an il' turgun, an' at this Fair we're got th' real thing."
"Ives in thim wad better thrade some iv they're masterpieces fr' few naked 'athens. They draw better."
"I dinna doot it, Casey," said McDon-

LORD CORNWALLIS IN SOUTH CAROLINA PERSECUTIONS AND SUFFERINGS OF THE PATRIOTS

From a Letter Written by a Patriot 123 Years Ago, and Now in Possession of a St. Louisian

CAMDEN, S. C., Aug. 6, 1781.—No event for many months has so raised the drooping spirits of our patriots as the news of the departure of the army of Lord Cornwallis from Wilmington, N. C., towards Virginia. We had learned a short time since of the battle at Guilford Courthouse, in North Carolina, on March 15 of this year, in which the British under Cornwallis were so badly whipped by the combined forces of the Americans under Gen. Greene that they speedily hurried towards the seacoast, but so great is the terror that his cruel outrages have spread over the entire state that we constantly feared he would bring his retreating army back into South Carolina, and upon our well-nigh defenseless heads, wreak vengeance for his own losses. To one at a distance, it is impossible to fittingly describe the cruelties inflicted upon our people by Lord Cornwallis himself and by those under his guidance and control. In obedience to his cruel orders the destruction of life and property has been fearful. He has issued proclamations and instructions which encouraged hostility towards every patriot; and under these instructions his agents acted in the state, committed many crimes and Tarleton and his legions spread desolation and terror throughout the state. A quartermaster of Tarleton's command entered the house of our friend, Samuel Wylie, near this place, and cut him in pieces with his sword because he had served as a volunteer in defense of Charleston.

As the Presbyterians generally have supported the American side, they have been specially singled out for persecution. The library and school of the Presbyterian clergyman in the northern part of the state were recently burned, and throughout the state they burned every Bible in which was found the Scottish translation of the Psalms. Prisoners who had been paroled here were special subjects of persecution under the immediate observation of Cornwallis unless they would exchange their paroles for oaths of allegiance. An active officer was deputed to visit every district in the state, and procure on the spot lists of the militia, so that any Carolinian thereafter taken in arms might be sentenced to death for desertion and "bearing arms against his country." Cornwallis never regarded a deserter, or anyone who court-martial had sentenced to death, as an object of mercy. His lieutenant, Lord Rawdon, had been particularly severe upon deserters from his Irish regiment, and has offered 10 guineas for the head of any deserter from the volunteers to Ireland, and five guineas if they will bring him in alive. These proceedings and others equally as atrocious were approved by Cornwallis, who tried to crush out every vestige of independence in the state by removing every able-bodied man to join the British army and take an active part in the re-establishment of royal rule. All who refused have been designated "rebels." He has put military despotism in place of civil law, and has ordered all militiamen who had served in royalist corps and were afterwards found in arms against the king, to be hanged without mercy, in which way many of our noble patriots have perished.

He gave the Tory leaders full license to execute these orders, and instantly murders, plunderings and the scourge of the torch everywhere appeared. The property of our citizens has been wantonly destroyed by fire and violence; the chastity of our women has been set at naught; and Whigs, both men and women, cultured and tenderly reared, have been treated by the ravenous Tory wolves as legitimate prey to their worst passions; our plantations have been pillaged by British troops and our property has been confiscated or wasted; patriots have been savagely assassinated; houses have been laid in ashes and women and children driven to the cold shelter of the forests; loyalists of the baser sort have purposely spread terror over the land and threatened to depopulate it; civil war in its worst form prevailed for a time—but the fortitude and bravery of our true men and women have kept us unoppressed, and we know that we will soon overcome our internal and external enemies, and will give to our state the honor of being the foremost in driving the invaders out of her borders.

My object in writing to you is that you may tell to the coming generations of Americans of the sacrifices made by their ancestors in redeeming this land from the power of the Indian and British. Tell them to ever so nobly love their land and its freedom imparting institutions, that, wherever they may be, consideration for their welfare and honor will always urge them to such untold heights of greatness that in the days to come it should again be said, "This and that man was born in."

INSURANCE OF WAGE-EARNERS IN GERMANY.

Nearly Twenty Million Working People Protected Against the Risk of Their Trades and Assured Assistance When Injured, Ill or Infirm From Old Age.

An exhibit of considerable sociological and economic interest in the Palace of Economy at the World's Fair in St. Louis is the compilation of statistics showing the general prevalence of workmen's insurance in Germany.
This insurance is mainly of three forms—against illness, accident and the disability of old age. The number of those insured against illness amounted in 1901 to 10,313,564, of whom 2,099,050 were women. The great increase in this line of insurance is indicated by the fact that the number so insured in 1885 was only 4,670,838.
Those protected by the accident insurance include all workmen engaged in trade, building, navigation, etc., as well as in agriculture and forestry, the list including clerks and officials with an annual income up to 8,000 marks (750) and small employers. The number of those thus insured amounted in 1902 to 17,582,000. The number of those insured against accident has likewise risen. It amounted to 3,000,000 in 1885, the first year of this insurance, and to 13,374,566 in 1903, when the agricultural accident insurance came into force.

To carry out the work of insurance against illness there existed in the empire in 1901 22,770 "sick clubs," with a total number of 10,313,564 members. Accident insurance is maintained on a mutual basis, in which employers of similar or related trades co-operate.
Concerned in this form of insurance in 1902 there were 66 industrial trades associations, with 7,100,537 persons insured, and 43 agricultural associations, with a list of 11,189,071 policy holders.

A World's Fair Waiter and His Woes.

From the Pilgrim for August.
Ever lose anything by the folk at the tables? Oh, once in a while. You ain't got no idea what the crowd thinks of us boys. When the bill looks big, they take a fall outen us; as though we wrote the card! We ain't got nothin' to do with it and if we tell 'em so they up to the high guy and reports us for insolence and out we go to hunt another table somers. It ain't fair, but the folks won't never learn. Some of 'em think they're smart if they eat a big mess of food and then duck out without payin' for it. They think they've stuck the waiter, that's all. We have to pay for every or der before we git it off the fire. All of us have to buy five dollars' worth of these little tickets before each meal. You see, they are all valued at a different amount. If a man wants a glass of beer, I pay for it with one of these ten cent tickets and take it to him. If he don't pay, why, I'm stuck; the house ain't. Catch the house gettin' stuck! Well, I guess not! But they don't do us often. They just kick; but we're used to that; it's part of the business.

Our own meals? O, it depends. I've been in places where if we tossed the cook a quarter in the kitchen he'd give us a swell feed. Here, though, we have to pay the card rate for all we eat. No, I ain't et here yet! I ain't going to, neither, 'long as I can walk over to the Alps. When the house gets to graffin' off the boys, it's pretty small and we don't stand for it. Cost me as much over there at the Alps restaurant as it does anybody else? Sure. My dinner last night, from soup to ice cream, cost me three ninety and I passed the boy a quarter. O, we have to do that. My friend, this business is like any other. We're all livin' off each other. It don't make no difference whether you're waitin' on table in a Chinese restaurant or makin' Standard Oil, you're livin' off your neighbor. You'll have to 'scuse me; they's a party over at that table. Table belongs to a pal o' mine. He's sick and I'm workin' it for him. Good-by. If you're in again, don't forget No. 32."

URGENT EXPLANATION OF INACTIVITY

Democratic Campaign Managers Will Ask Why Fund for Running Down Trusts Is Not Spent.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Democratic campaign managers will try to find out why the activity of the department of justice in running down trusts has ceased. The attorney-general will be asked why it is that practically no money has been spent in the last few months out of the appropriation of $500,000 made by Congress. The allegation is made that only $20,000 of the $500,000 has been expended, and the bulk of this is in connection with the Northern Securities case.
Figures collected by the bureau of corporations of the department of commerce and labor adorn government schedules and reports that do not reach the eyes of the public. Democrats are seeking to find out what is to be done with this data. A strong point is to be made of the fact that although the bureau has been in operation more than a year, apparently it has been of no benefit in the suppression of illegal combinations. Democrats are asking why information collected is not used to help the department of justice to carry on prosecutions of illegal trusts.
Democrats point out that at the time of the federal appropriation of the $500,000 Congress provided large salaries for additional assistant attorney-generals. A year ago there were three such officials. Congress increased the number three, and Attorney-General Knox appointed personal friends to two of the places. These places were created for lawyers who were to assist in action against trusts. Democrats want to know what those men are doing, as the routine of the department does not furnish them with sufficient work. In addition provision was made for employees of lower grade to work on cases relating to trusts.

The Octopus.

The octopus, first cousin to the shark, exists in many parts of the world. In Louisiana it is the common food of the Greek islands. You can buy an octopus steak any day in the San Francisco market. The Italians and Chinese regard it as a delicacy boiled, fried or in salads. The Pacific coast Indians always eat it. Enough octopuses are caught in New York waters in a single season to cover many acres of ground, and they would make excellent fertilizer, if not the most delicious vegetable.
When a Greek wants to catch an octopus he stands in the bow of the boat with a glass-bottomed tin can in his hand. The he inserts into the sea, so as to be just below the ripple, and through it obtains an excellent view of all that is going on down in the depths. As soon as he sees an octopus in his line, or house, he tells it out with his bait until it is clear of the bottom, then gives it the halt and quickly hauls it into the boat, when he grasps it in his hands and bites it on the neck. Out gushes a disgusting stream of matter like the sepiol of a cuttlefish, and the octopus wriggles and writhes for hours in the bottom of the boat, changing color like a chameleon, from brown to red and red to blue, and dying exceedingly hard. If you put a dried octopus in the water a year after its death the muscles would wriggle again.—New York Press.

RISING BREAST

And many other painful and serious ailments from which most mothers suffer, can be avoided by the use of "Mother's Friend." This great remedy is a God-send to women, carrying them through their most critical ordeal with safety and no pain. No woman who uses "Mother's Friend" need fear the suffering and danger incident to birth; for it robs the ordeal of its horror and insures safety to life of mother and child, and leaves her in a condition more favorable to speedy recovery. The child is also healthy, strong and good natured. Our book "Motherhood," is worth its weight in gold to every woman, and will be sent free in plain envelope by addressing application to Bradfield Regulator Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Economy of Gas.

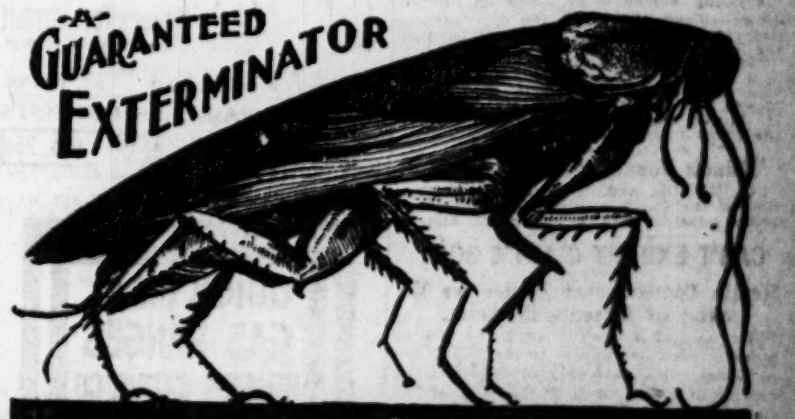

We make an appeal to you to use gas for cooking on the broad basis of ECONOMY. We are confident that gas will come to be the universal fuel for cooking because of this one overshadowing fact—its CHEAPNESS.

Thousands now cook with gas for its convenience, cleanliness, comfort; and other thousands for its EFFICIENCY, and the day is not far distant when all people will cook with gas for its ECONOMY.

Ten years ago you might have borne the burdens of the coal stove and found it economy to do so. But that will not hold true today. Since 1890 soft coal has advanced in price 43.9 per cent. This is the figure given by Carroll D. Wright, Commissioner of the Bureau of Labor. In the same period fuel GAS has gone down in St. Louis 33 per cent! This means that coal has advanced by degrees to almost double its former cost. It means that coal is no longer a necessity to some but a luxury to all.

If you will thoroughly investigate this matter—count the cost in each case—facts will force you to the conclusion that gas is pre-eminently and without question the cheapest and best fuel in the world for cooking.

WAS ASSAULTED BY STRIKE

Henry D. Scott, Memphis Druggist, Mistaken for Strike Breaker.
Fred Pierce and John Buck, two striking butchers, are held at the East St. Louis police station to answer to a charge of assaulting Henry D. Scott, of Memphis, Tenn., who was attacked near the packing houses on St. Clair avenue in a street car, Monday night last. Scott, who is supposed to have mistaken his way for a strike leader, was released after he was threatened a few minutes after the assault.

Twenty Thompson of St. Clair County has issued 50 commissions to new deputy sheriffs to take places of 200, who were dismissed last week by the sheriff for siding with the new men gave the sheriff a bond that he will resign if he is not given the position of his duty. The sheriff has announced that he will commission no new men who are able to furnish bond.

East Side Fugitive Caught.
John Stupian, wanted in East St. Louis upon a charge of the murder of Peter Oughton in a saloon on St. Clair avenue in East St. Louis a year ago, has been arrested by Officer John H. Hinkle, of the East St. Louis, Stupian was discharged after Oughton's death, but he was subsequently arrested on a charge of being an accessory after the fact. Both men had quarreled and that after Oughton fired a stone at him Stupian fired, hitting Oughton fatally. Both men were packing house employees.
